ADDENDUM #1

Issue Date: October 29, 2014

RFP Title: Integrated Housing and Integrated Day Support Services

AGENCY: Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Services (DBHDS)

Purpose: RFP Clarification

Under Section 3 Introduction and Background, Core Values: Integrated Day Activities as referenced throughout the document should instead be referenced as Integrated Community Activities.

Integrated community activities, as directed by the person and their person centered plan, support the abilities and skills necessary to access typical activities and functions of community life such as those chosen by the general population, including community education or training, retirement, recreation, and volunteer activities. Integrated community activities provide a wide variety of opportunities to facilitate and build relationships and natural supports in the community, while utilizing the community as a learning environment. These activities are conducted at naturally occurring times and in a variety of natural settings in which the person actively interacts with individuals without disabilities (other than those paid to support the person). The activities enhance the person's involvement with the community and facilitate the development of natural supports.

These services take place in nonresidential settings, separate from the individual's home. Integrated community activities must be provided in the least restrictive and most integrated settings according to the individual's person-centered plan and individual choice.

In order for an activity to qualify under integrated day activities it must include all three of the following:

1. The activity must be in the community and
2. Facilitate the development of a meaningful relationship with community members without disabilities and
3. Facilitate inclusion in the community (provided with no more than three peers ; 1 staff to 3 individuals with disabilities, preference being 1:1)

The extent of integrated community activities is determined by each individual's person centered plan and need as well as desire for community engagement.
